Foreword

If the biologist is right that the biological evolution of the human organism is going on so slowly that man himself is not now endowed with capacities appreciably different from those which he brought with him into the period of recorded history, then, since, within this period the forward strides that he has made in his control over his environment, in the development of his civilization, have been stupendous and unquestionable, it follows that this progress has been due, not to the betterment of his stock, but rather primarily to the passing on of the accumulated knowledge of the race to the generations following after. The great instruments of progress for mankind are then research, the discovery of new knowledge, and education, the passing on of the store of accumulated wisdom to our followers. This puts the immediate destinies of the race, or of our section of the race, or of our section of our country, largely in our own hands. This spirit and this conviction is the gift of modern science to the world. It is then too much to say that modern science has remade philosophy and revivified religion?

ROBERT A. MILLIKAN

Dedication

Because he heads one of the finest educational institutions in the country, the California Institute of Technology, and because he and his associates have done such wonderful research in the scientific study of light, and because of his position as an honored and respected member of our own Southland community, we thought it appropriate to take the honor of dedicating the 1930 COLONIAL to Dr. Robert A. Millikan.

Theme

"Light, intellectual and mechanical, as expressed through the lives of great men," has been chosen by the 1930 staff as the theme of this year's Colonial.

We are living in an age of marvelous mechanical and intellectual advancement. One hundred and fifty years ago democratic government was still an experiment. Less than 70 years ago slavery was an institution and free thought was practically unknown. It wasn't so far back that our ancestors were still using candle-light. Great men and women have made possible the enlightened era of which we, the youths of the land, are the beneficiaries. The duty rests upon us, with the advantages of freedom and modern science, to carry on and make the world a still better and happier place in which to live.

The Art Department is to be thanked for aiding in the carrying out of the theme. The end sheet wood cuts are those of some of the men and women who have been particularly active in the scientific study of light or who have been leaders in intellectual and cultural development. The division pages carry out pictorially the natural phenomena and the marginal cuts show the historical development of light. The entire book is done in the modern style with a view of exemplifying the spirit of freedom and modernism which has led on the men who have aided the advancement of civilization.

The motto, Adfer Lucem, will be noticed on the pages beside the senior biographies. This is translated, "Towards the Light." This thought of beneficial progress is a fitting send-off to the graduating classes, and if we, the staff, leave with you the resolution to follow this truth, we will feel that our work has been well rewarded.

Luck,
Marian Jimmy

FELLOW CLASSMATES:

I feel particularly close to the Class of Summer '30, because you, or some of you, came to Fairfax as B7's when the school was opened, and have lived with me through all the life of the school. You have helped to shape the policies, to establish the customs, to start things which we hope will become traditions. Year after year we have worked side by side for our school, sometimes making mistakes, sometimes building something of substance and durability, all the time coming to appreciate each other more, to see each other's good traits, to overlook each other's faults.

And now you are about to go out into a large field of activity, to put into effect the theories we worked out together here. I trust that you realize that only the worker is entitled to live, that all labor is honorable, provided it has an honest aim; that to live largely one must be "noble in word, honorable in deed"; that service must come before self, or as Rotary puts it, that "he profits most who serves best." If you have learned these lessons while we have walked side by side, your future years will be happy ones, your community will be the richer because of your presence, and we at Fairfax will have discharged a part of our duty to this city and to posterity.

To the Members of the Class of S'30:

Above the rotunda of our school building is to be seen a figure representing the lamp of knowladge, symbol of a fountain of learning on the busy city street.

We are subject, in our intellectual and spiritual life, to a darkness called ignorance, manifesting itself in prejudice, superstition, and hate. This darkness must be replaced by its antithesis—light.

You have discovered long ago, however, that the mere presence of opportunity may mean little to you. It is necessary for you to use the opportunity afforded.

Greater knowledge brings with it greater responsibility—greater vision brings greater duty—these are yours as you leave this outpost lighted by the lamp of knowledge.

Sincerely your friend,

D. S. Snow

May you who are to be graduated from Fairfax always remember your school as the home of fine ideals and splendid accomplishments. In the future, when you throw the pictures of your school day memories upon the screen, may you all feel that you can invite the public to see the pictures, and never have cause to blush at any that is there. May your thoughts, words, and deeds be always noble, honorable, and open to the light of day. Thus will your life away from school be happy and successful.

To the Student Body:

Fairfax, I am more proud than I can say to have had the privilege of serving you. If the things we have accomplished have been honorable, and of lasting value, and if we have all been happy in doing them, we may consider ourselves successful.

In the future, as in the past, the life of Fairfax will be one of conquest. The life of any school should be. But if Fairfax can continue to come out on top, fairly and squarely, she will gain for herself the place we so dearly wish. If this term has been a step toward that goal, and if it can stand as a firm foundation for other steps, we have not worked in vain.

The opportunity I have had of serving you has only increased my debt. Fairfax has given me the happiest years of my life. I hope I shall always be worthy of them.

To the Student Body:

Serving you as Lord High Commissioner in my last semester has put a happy ending to enjoyable years with you.

Next year, Fairfax embarks on a new voyage, and with it comes a chance to show the spirit of loyalty that every true Colonial holds dear.

We have taken pride in our past achievements, but let us not rest on these past laurels. Continue your cooperation, Fairfax, and achievements are bound to follow.

Any success this term is due to the remarkable cooperation of both the faculty and Student Body.

In finishing my term as your Student Body President, I wish to thank you for the honor of serving you. It will always be among my happiest memories.

BOYS' ASSIZE COURT

Under the efficient leadership of Ernest Phillips, the Boys' Assize Court completed an unusually successful semester. For the first time since their organization there has been complete harmony between the Boys' Assize Court, the Colonial Knights, Presidents' Forum, and the Colonial Council. The efficiency of this semester's court is due largely to the plan whereby each member is given an active part in the organization; thus every boy in the court had a sense of duty toward the school which increased his efficiency.

Besides the excellent work of the individual members, the officers performed notably. In addition to Ernest Phillips, the executives were: Hugh Fowler, vice-president; Ben Wilson, secretary, and Philip Fraser, treasurer.

The commissioners were also very efficient. They included John Van Dam, hall guards; Bill Spaulding, assemblies; Reuel Harter, halls; Fred Varney, patrol duty, and Michael Gelis, yards.

The court had one jury and two general meetings per week. The former was used for trying cases of misconduct, and the latter for court business. The general meetings were frequently accompanied by speeches from Mr. Swan, Mr. Gilmore, and Mr. Joy. The latter acted in the capacity of sponsor and rendered much advice.

The Boys' Assize Court did much for the betterment of the school, this term. Their big drive, the clean-up week, was the main factor in the improved appearance of Fairfax. It was instrumental in the petitions for parking at an angle on Fairfax Avenue. The court also recently presented the school with eight new trash cans.

GIRLS' ASSIZE COURT

It has been the endeavor of the Assize Court to guide the students toward the goal of good citizenship, to build up school spirit, and to keep our halls, yards, lockers, and assemblies in the best condition.

The Assize Court is composed of representatives from each classroom, from whom are chosen twelve members to serve as a jury. This body is changed every five weeks. The regular parliamentary proceedings of trial are carried out by the jury. Thus, each girl brought up before the court is given a fair chance.

Throughout the year the Assize Court has tried to be fair with everyone, and only hopes that it has promoted a sense of personal responsibility in each member of the student body toward the best regulating of the school.

COLONIAL KNIGHTS

The Colonial Knights, organized last September with the definite aim of fostering a better spirit among the students of Fairfax, embody in their motto, "For the honor of the school," the purpose and spirit of the organization.

During the first semester the members of the Knights, headed by Homer Griffith, Assistant Lord High Commissioner, formed many rules and regulations, among which were: that membership should be based upon citizenship and activities in student government, athletics, and other school activities; that the membership should be limited to fifteen, three members to be chosen from the A11 class, five from the B12, and seven from the A12; and that those who were chosen as Knights should retain their membership until they graduated.

During the second semester the members, under the leadership of Charles Judson, voted to have cardinal sweaters with a distinctive emblem as a mark of distinction and identification for Knights.

The duties of the organization are: to maintain order on the campus and in the assembly hall, and to enforce the "off bounds" rule during the noon period. The activities of the members are not limited to these few duties, but include the encouragement of everything contributing to the betterment of Fairfax.

Mr. D. S. Swan, boys' vice-principal, was the organizer and faculty sponsor of the Colonial Knights during the past year. The meetings were held once every week.

CLASS OF WINTER '30

The graduation of the class of W'30 saw the passing of the last of the original pioneer classes who enrolled at Fairfax in September, 1924. The class gradually increased the importance of its role in the various activities at Fairfax with each succeeding term, finally becoming an important and influential factor in school life.

Winter '30 has shown its influence and importance in scholastics, forensics, athletics, student government, and in countless lines in which one may distinguish oneself.

The final semester was punctuated by several important events. The election of class officers, the organization of the various committees, the novel Color Day, the usual Senior A-Senior B fracas, the interclass debate in which the Senior A's won the cup, "Clarence," all aided in enlivening the struggle for graduation.

One of the smallest classes in number, the Class of Winter '30, has, under the able sponsorship of Miss Ringle, Miss Keyes, Miss Lickel, become the peer of all classes in the size of accomplishments.

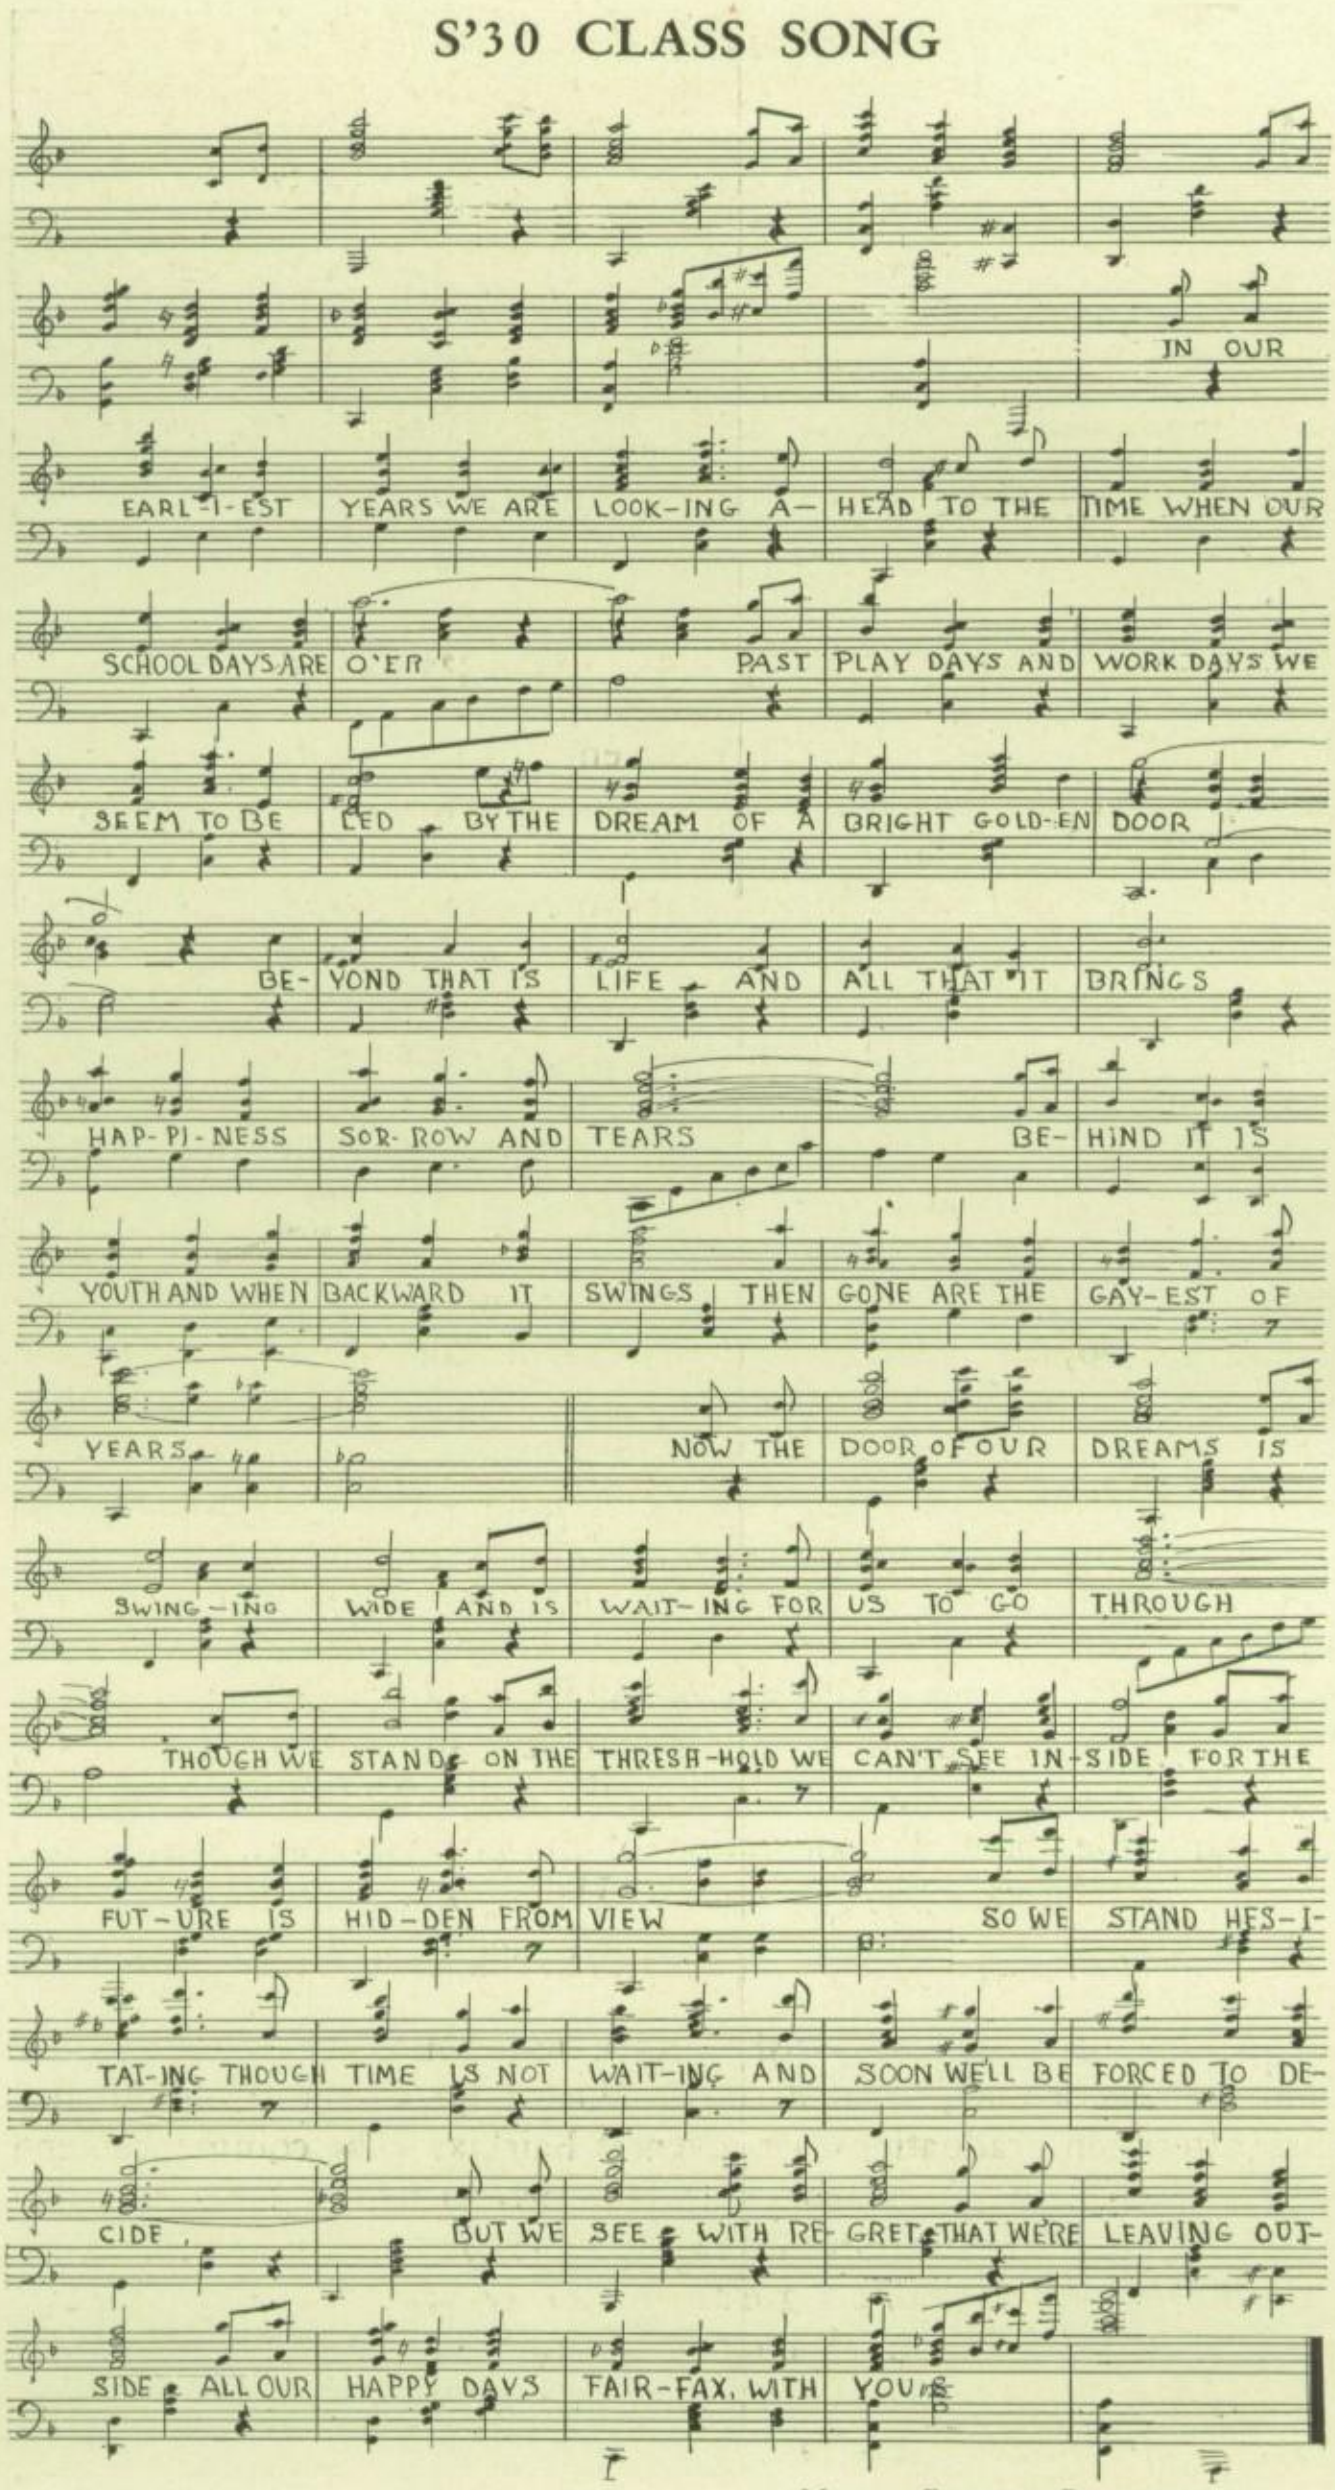
S'30 CLASS SONG



IN OUR
EARL-I-EST YEARS WE ARE LOOK-ING A- HEAD TO THE TIME WHEN OUR SCHOOL DAYS ARE O'ER PAST PLAY DAYS AND WORK DAYS WE SEEM TO BE LED BY THE DREAM OF A BRIGHT GOLD-EN DOOR
BE- YOND THAT IS LIFE AND ALL THAT IT BRINGS
HAP-PI-NESS SOR-ROW AND TEARS BE- HIND IT IS YOUTH AND WHEN BACKWARD IT SWINGS THEN GONE ARE THE GAY-EST OF YEARS NOW THE DOOR OF OUR DREAMS IS SWING-ING WIDE AND IS WAIT-ING FOR US TO GO THROUGH THOUGH WE STAND ON THE THRESH-HOLD WE CAN'T SEE IN-SIDE FOR THE FUT-URE IS HID-DEN FROM VIEW SO WE STAND HES-I-
TAT-ING THOUGH TIME IS NOT WAIT-ING AND SOON WE'LL BE FORCED TO DE-CIDE BUT WE SEE WITH RE- GRET THAT WE'RE LEAVING OUT-
SIDE ALL OUR HAPPY DAYS FAIR-FAX WITH YOU

MARION PEARSON, Poet-composer.

THE CLASS OF S'30

As the first class to complete the entire six years of school at Fairfax High School, this group of boys and girls have easily lived up to this distinction. Because of their pep and enterprise many new ideas were inaugurated, including an afternoon graduation, and an evening performance of the Color Day. The officers chosen served their class well, and it is because of them that we have earned the title of the "best" class ever graduated from the Colonial school. Not only have we been popular with the teachers, but we made the principal an honorary member of the class and presented him with our emblem in the form of a watch fob.

The senior class play was another credit to the Senior A's, with its excellent acting and clever characterizations. And as the customary thing, the boys of the class have excelled in athletic prowess. In the tug of war between the two senior classes it was plain to be seen that both brain and brawn pulled the blue and white to an easy victory. In all the departments of the school the graduates are prominent, and their aid will surely be missed in the fall term, and not only have members of this class confined their talents to Fairfax, but they have brought honor to themselves and their school by their work in the world outside. When the time for the traditional Color Day arrived the students made up their minds to give a show that would never be forgotten by the school. Through the leadership of the class president and the splendid cooperation of the class sponsor, Miss Leora Baxter, and the valuable help of Miss Helen Greening and Mrs. Florence Horton, this was the most pretentious event ever staged at Fairfax.

Then the class, not satisfied with presenting the most unusual and best Color Day, decided to end their high school days with the first afternoon graduation ever given at Fairfax. The commencement was held in Van Cleve field, with the girls in lovely pastel summer frocks, and the boys in summer flannels. Huge amplifiers made every speech audible and added greatly to the occasion. Group singing, commencement orations, Principal Rae G. Van Cleve.

Surely the class of S'30 made a name for itself that will live forever in the annals of Fairfax!

Or of the Eternal coeternal beam,
May I express thee unblam'd, since God is light,
And never but in unapproached light
Dwelt from eternity, dwelt then in thee,
Bright effluence of bright essence increate!

George Dickenson, Mary Berry, Richard Gorham, Fred Becker.

SENIOR B

During the past year the class of W'31 has been proud of its share in the activities, formal and informal, of the school. Many of its members have gained success in athletics for both boys and girls, scholarship, and student share in administration. It has risen to and benefited from the opportunities for learning and working during its existence as a group in such a way as to show its worthiness of the responsibilities of Senior A's. The class looks forward to having at Fairfax a reputation that will be as excellent as any other classes, and yet will have a uniqueness.

THE FAIRFAX ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Fairfax Alumni Association held its annual June meeting in 1929. This gathering was a huge success, as many alumni came back to visit. Dancing was featured in the Girls' Gym, and refreshments were plentiful. The Alumni Association at this time had a sign made which says "Welcome, Alumni," and which will be put out in front of Fairfax every year from now on at the time of the alumni homecoming.

On December 27, 1929, our annual banquet was held at the Mary Louise Tea Room. Paul Zettler was re-elected president. Fern Johnson, secretary, and Edward Parsons, treasurer. Dorothy Osborne was elected vice-president.

Representatives from different classes were then elected to keep in touch with a Alumni Association officers throughout the year. The following people were elected to represent their classes: George Gose, S'27; Don Tuttle, W'28; Bailey Edgerton, S'28; William Thompson, W'29, and Dennis Thorn, S'29. Bill Young was appointed by the president to see that some one be elected to serve in this capacity for the Winter Class of 1930.

The Alumni officers are now considering a budget plan for our scholarship fund, which we hope to submit to the school for approval in the future.

Respectfully,

FERN JOHNSON,

Alumni Secretary.

CLASS ROOM PRESIDENTS

The class room Presidents meet each Monday at roll call for the purpose of discussing school problems. These problems are referred to the forum committee for consideration. The things that seem most vital are referred to Mr. Van Cleve, for his consideration.

Every other Wednesday each President holds a forum in his class room, discussing the ideals of the school. In these forums many school problems can be put to the student body as a whole.

It is the aim of the Presidents' Club to work in conjunction with the Assize Courts, so that the school may profit double for its efforts.

During the past year the halls and grounds have been improved due to the combined efforts of the Assize Courts, Colonial Council, and the Presidents' Club.

The Presidents' Club sponsored a "Motto Finding Campaign." Each student sent in his suggestion as an ideal for the school. After careful consideration, the motto, "Never say die, say do," was chosen as representative of the school's highest ideal.

Under the direction of the Forum Committee and Miss Alice Colville, the Presidents' Club has become an outstanding society working for the good of the student body.

THE COLONIAL 1930

COLONIAL HISTORY

The Colonial Staff of 1930 has faithfully tried to uphold the standards set by five previous annuals. The first annual was produced under the sponsorship of Harry Dukes and the editorship of Fred Champion, two years after the school's founding in 1924. There was no definite theme, but the book carried out the Colonial idea since it was the first annual produced by the Lords and Ladies of Fairfax.

The following year, Mr. Dukes, with Dick Albee as editor, brought out an enlarged annual that embodied many of the features and standards so familiar to the later Colonial books.

In 1928, Mrs. Ray took over the sponsorship, and with the aid of James Fessler, conceived a national prize winning, first class honor-rating book. The theme, "The Great Adventure of Youth," was splendidly handled, with a foreword written by David Starr Jordan.

The 1929 Colonial won a second class honor-rating. "Now and Then at Fairfax," the theme, was original and well done by Mrs. Ray, with Ralph Lazarus as editor.

The Summer Class of 1930 is a pioneer class; the first to go through the complete six-year course at Fairfax. The book we, the Seniors, are presenting is also a pioneer. It adverturously embodies new and daring features that we hope will be as well accepted as was the first pioneer Colonial. Our concluding hope is that we've lived up to the standards and traditions of former year-books and that we have in turn established new standards that will give impetus to the development of "bigger and better" future Colonials.

LIBRARY

What is this room we are entering? It is the Fairfax Library. It couldn't be anything else but the library—with its orderly atmosphere and ready workers. Colorful paintings by Mr. Paxton, head of the art department, and other artists as well adorn the walls, and clever "Booklovers' Maps" attract the attention of the eye. Gay magazine covers on one side and books belonging to the Book Club on the other, are also seen. Window boxes, flowers and ferns, add to the beauty of the room. The rows of tables are filled with busy students, and others are clustered around the main desk and filing cabinets.

Perpendicular to the northern wall of the library, we observe numerous shelves containing orderly rows of books. Among these shelves the librarians work, diligently searching for books desired by students, as the latter are not allowed beyond a long, low counter placed in front of these shelves. This is a beneficial innovation, introduced at the beginning of the spring term. It has completely altered the library materially, but the same familiar atmosphere hovers within the walls.

Books of fiction and books of reference, magazines, pamphlets, and books to supplement every school study, books on philosophy, religion, sociology, languages, natural science, useful arts, fine arts, literature, and history may all be found on our book shelves. During the spring term, for the first time since Fairfax was founded, a complete inventory was taken of all the books in the library.

Much new equipment was acquired during the year, as well as new paintings and other additions, all attesting to our library's rapid growth in beauty as well as efficiency.

LETTERMEN'S CLUB

To promote general athletic spirit in the student body is the purpost of the Lettermen's Club.

With meetings held every two weeks, the Lettermen's Club was able to perform many acts of service to the school, such as taking care of the field for all home athletic contests.

The yearly activities of the club are a semi-annual dance, which holds the spot light of all Colonial social gatherings, and an annual football banquet. In addition to these, the Lettermen's Club had a baseball game the second semester with the faculty, and the money received went for the placing of school track records in the Rotunda.

Much of the club's success is due to Coach Call, who, as sponsor of the club, guided it into its present position of Fairfax's leading service organization.

Meetings were held at the homes of Joe Gaudio, Dick Swift, Clyde Baker, and George Stanback. The club was fortunate to secure for speakers Wendell Hellman, member of the Hollywood High School Lettermen's Club, and Gene Baum, president of Los Angeles High School Lettermen's Club. Through these speakers much valuable information was derived, and in turn the speakers were able to carry back to their own clubs many of the ideas which proved so successful at Fairfax.

STUDENT SERVICE

A part of the student government not always given full credit for the hard work and steady grind is composed of the student store, the candy stand, the attendance office, the treasurer's office, and the cafeteria.

The student store is open early in the morning and late in the afternoon. It supplies school requisites, school colors and emblems, and the utilities. Ever ready and ever willing, it furnishes everything that is used during the daily routine.

The candy stand is probably the most popular of any of these with the students. Besides soothing the campus sweet tooth, it supplies sundaes, polar suckers, and other confections. At the games they supply and serve the spectators with cooling ices and sweets to further the yelling with tired throats.

The attendance office, the ban of the unsubordinate, is a true friend to the average student.

A great deal of the clerical work of the student body is handled here by the office and its many helpers.

The Fairfax Cafeteria is an indispensable necessity of school life. Besides satisfying the appetites of Junior and Senior High School sections of the student body, it provides the refreshments for the numerous banquets and entertainments during the school year.

PROMETHEAN SOCIETY

The Promethean Society was organized as the one hundred and fortieth chapter in the California Scholarship Federation about five years ago. From that time until now, service has always been the motto, purpose, and spirit of this organization. This group has tried in every way to render service to Fairfax and to the students. Prometheans have spent much of their time as tutors trying to help other students raise their scholarship standings.

The general requirements for membership in this society are three "A's" in solids and no mark less than "B" in all other subjects. If a student meets with these requirements and serves loyally as a member of the Promethean Society for four semesters, one of which signifies life membership in the California Scholarship Federation. He also is awarded a gold seal of scholarship on his high school graduation diploma.

Prometheans enjoy certain distinct privileges to which no other Fairfax organization is entitled. Once each year, during the summer semester, a half-holiday is planned. During the winter semester some social function is held. This year the Prometheans enjoyed a banquet which was held in the evening.

This semester the Promethean Society has opened its doors to a greater number of students than it has ever before had the pleasure of welcoming. The organization hopes that its membership will increase with each semester, and that Fairfax will stand first in scholarship.

ATHLETICS RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT

Descending the stairs of time, one views the year of 1930 as one of great success, crowned by the winning of one championship and the possibility of two more. There is not sufficient space here for a complete resume of the year, but only enough for a brief summary.

At the beginning of the year the turnout for football exposed a large quantity of good material. In the three practice games that followed the Colonials emerged unscathed, winning two and tying the third. Led by Captain Rosenberg, the Colonials fought valiantly against heavy opposition, and won two of the tilts, tying in another. The lightweight football team, although they played unevenly at times, won three of the five matches held.

Basketball followed soon, and here also good material was quite plentiful, aided by the presence of two returning lettermen. Coach

Bowen, through hard work and infinite patience, rounded out a hard, fast team which, captained by Joe Gaudio, swept through all opposition, winning the third consecutive basketball crown, a record unsurpassed and unequaled by any other school in the league. The scrappy lightweight babes, also coached by Coach Bowen, won four out of five games, losing only one game of the season.

Aaron Rosenberg

The track season this year, generally speaking, was probably the most successful Fairfax has ever had. At the beginning of the season Fairfax was doped to place last, and she most likely would have, had it not been for the super-human coaching of Coach Lloyd, who guided the team across the shoals to second place in the league. Captain Bill Smith and John McCarthy had the honor of two medals from the California State Meet, placing Fairfax second to only one school in Los Angeles in the number of points made in that all important meet. Class B and C track, under Coach Welsh, also made excellent records, each placing a number of men in the Southern California meet.

One of the strongest baseball squads Fairfax has ever had, is making a bid for the championship, captained by Hayne Blankenship, a four-year letterman, and Coach Bowens' tenth grade is making a strong bid likewise.

Joe Gaudio

In expressing appreciation to the coaches, little can be said that has not already been told, but to Mr. Ray Call, head of the gym department; Hugh Welsh, coach of heavyweight football and B and C track; to Mr. Ross Bowen, coach of basketball and tenth grade baseball; to Mr. Lloyd, track coach; to the student body coaches and all who assisted in the making of the year what it was, Fairfax sends here sincerest appreciation.

Prospects for next year in athletics are very promising, although we are entering a much stronger league.

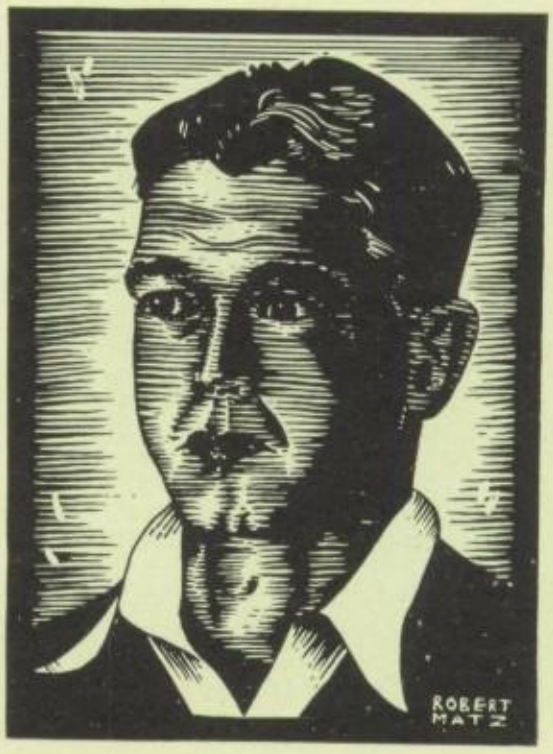
In heavyweight football the prospects are probably the least likely of all, due to the loss of all but one letterman from last year's team. Practically the entire squad is composed of students who have been in school for quite a while but have not been active in athletics.

Bill Smith

Coach Shaffer predicts a close race for the championship for the lightweight team. His prediction is backed by the fact that he will have some of the best backfield and live material he has ever had.

Our chances in track have never been as good as they are at the present, as we have ten lettermen returning, among whom are Smith and McCarthy, who were so successful in the State meet. Coach Lloyd expects to be the strongest in sprints, high jump, and the broad jump.

The indications in baseball, although very deceptive, point toward a successful season for next year. The material so far has consisted of four returning lettermen and the majority of the members of the ninth and tenth grade team. Although the infield has been predicted a weak one, the outfield is expected to show a good deal of strength.



H. Blankenship

The ninth grade team will be an entirely new one, so it is impossible to make any prognostication on its outcome.

The basketball material and prospects are about as good as they have ever been in the heavyweight division. Coach Bowen feels that with the discovery of a good center the team will be very difficult to stop.

Lightweight material so far has been only mediocre, but probably will be quite promising by next semester.

BACK ROW: B. Nothoff, H. Zubrinski, H. Griffith, J. Seiple, C. Carlton, P. Kneisley. THIRD ROW: F. Rublee, A. Rosenberg, G. Altshuler, N. Schlank, J. Rollins, J. Latham, G. Priest. SECOND ROW: C. Welch.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Led by Captain Aaron Rosenberg, the Colonial football team opened the season against Redondo, in the first of a series of practice games. In this encounter the fighting Colonials emerged victorious by a touchdown margin. Woodrow Wilson was next entertained at Long Beach. The result was a scoreless tie.

The following Friday, Van Nuys came to Fairfax. The Valley team put up a stiff battle. The first half, Fairfax was unable to complete its plays. In the second half, however, the trouble was rectified, and Fairfax won, 19-0.

The game at Belmont turned out to be almost a repetition of the game two years ago. Fairfax, though playing with a slight edge, was unable to break down the bitter defense of the Hilltoppers. The result was a scoreless tie.

The University High squad was next defeated, playing a good defensive game until worn down. The result, 26-0 for Fairfax.

In the next encounter the Colonials were defeated, due to the heavy interference and baffling plays of the Pathfinders.

Garfield, a good, husky team, was the next invader to go down to defeat on Vancleve field. During the last quarter of this fracas Garfield made thrilling but futile attempts to tie the score.

The final game was well fought. The Roughriders won, bringing to a close a successful and hard fought season.

"B" FOOTBALL

The lightweights under the supervision of Coach Shaffer made a very good showing this year, although the season was marred by two defeats. In the game with Belmont the Colonials suffered from tough breaks, having the ball on the one yard line, with three downs to go, when the gun sounded for the half. The result was scoreless tie.

Fairfax looked rather ragged in the following game with the powerful Fremont squad. Fremont scored two touchdowns in about the first five minutes of play. The result was 21-0 in favor of Fremont.

The following week the Colonials ran roughshod over University High, winning by a margin of four touchdowns. The result was 24-0 in favor of Fairfax.

In the game with Garfield the Colonials displayed the best form of the season; playing a hard, driving game off tackle, they scored the first touchdown; the second was made on an interception of a pass by Phillips. The result was 12-0 in favor of Fairfax.

The final game with Roosevelt was rather loosely played, due to many injuries. The opportunity for Fairfax to score came when the ball was on the one yard line with four downs to go, following a beautiful fifty-yard run by Siegmund on a reverse play. Roosevelt scored its lone touchdown on a series of passes. The result was 7-0 in favor of Roosevelt.

"A" BASKETBALL

The Colonial hoopsters met Belmont in the first conflict of the season in a hard, fast game. Both teams were functioning well, with Harris and Captain Gaudio outstanding for Fairfax. Score, 25 to 12.

In the following encounter, with University, the Colonials, although leading 11-7 at the half, were completely off form, due to strenuous practice games. In the second half Fairfax located the hoop and scored 22-14, Harris and Thomas outstanding.

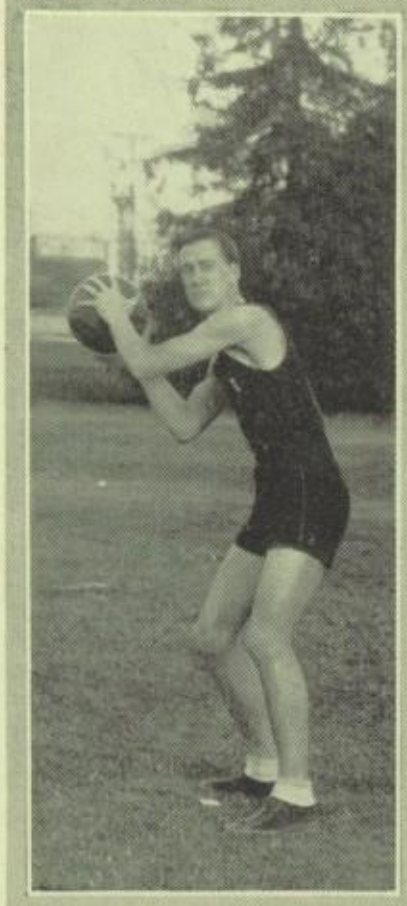
The next game, with Garfield on the Whittier High field, was well played, the score at the half being 20-8, the result of the able guarding of Williams and Kelly. Captain Gaudio was again high point man, although followed closely by Anderson and Harris.

Fairfax opened the game against Fremont with an avalanche of baskets, ringing up 15 digits in the first three minutes of play.

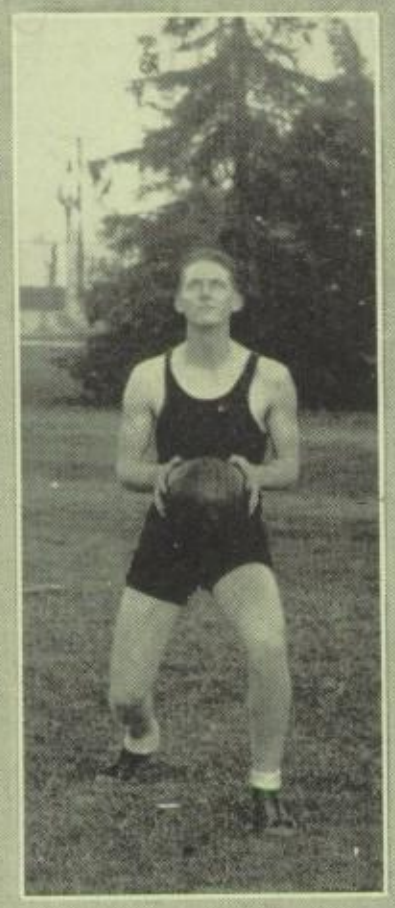
In order to save the regulars for the hard game with Roosevelt, the substitutes played the second half, finishing the game with the score of 33-8.

The game with Roosevelt proved to be the high light of the season. Both teams were clicking, with the Colonials displaying a slight superiority.

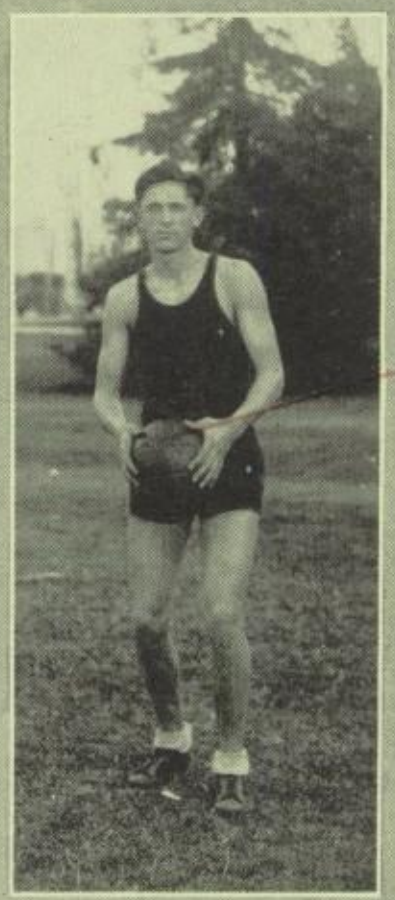
Ray Harris, star forward and offensive cog of the Colonials, completely dominated the play, scoring over half of the points made. The result was 23-15 in favor of Fairfax.



Bill Kelly



Walt Thomas



Joe Gandio

Jack Williams

LIGHTWEIGHT BASKETBALL

In the opening game with Belmont, Coach Bowen's lightweights suffered the only defeat of the season. The game, though closely fought, was not indicative of the capabilities of the Colonials. The result was 18-16 in favor of Belmont.

The following week Fairfax easily defeated University High, using substitutes practically the whole game. Brown starred in this encounter, making twelve of the eighteen digits. The result was 18-7 in favor of Fairfax.

The Fremont Babes also furnished little opposition, withering before the dominating Colonial offense. Captain Nicholson and Brown shared honors in this fracas. The result was 23-9 in favor of Fairfax.

Fairfax easily outplayed Garfield in the following encounter, the substitutes playing most of the game to save the regulars for the crucial game with Roosevelt. The result was 35-8 in favor of Fairfax.

The fracas with Roosevelt was for second place in the league, and consequently was the hardest fought of the season. Lorenz and McLaren were the outstanding players. The result was 17-9 in favor of Fairfax.

Winning four out of five encounters the lightweights ended in second place for the second time in two years.

VARSITY TRACK

The varsity track team, under Coach Lloyd, had an exceptionally good year, completing the season with a second place in the Minor City League meet, and placing first in the second division of the All City Relay Carnival. A great deal of credit is due Coach Lloyd, as his hard work and excellent judgment were largely responsible for the good results obtained.

The second meet with the powerful Fremont squad proved the only setback of the dual meets, Fairfax losing by two points. This encounter was easily the outstanding of the dual meets, revealing an excellent eight-man mile relay team: McCarthy, Levenberg, Dennington, Williams, Mountford, Loweth, Jacoby, and Captain Smith.

Garfield literally succumbed before the powerful Colonial onslaught, winning only 21 points.

The last dual meet with Roosevelt also proved a very decisive victory for Fairfax, who won by a score of 64-41.

In the Minor City League meet, Captain Bill Smith tied for first in broad jump; John McCarthy tied in the 100-yard dash and took second in the 220; John Matz won first place in the high jump; Cutler upset the dope when he captured second place in the mile, and in so doing established a new school record for that event; the eight-man relay team placed second.

In the Southern California meet, McCarthy romped in third in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes, with Bill Smith placing third in the broad jump with the best jump he has ever made.

SECOND ROW: Glen Welch, Frank Wantanabe, Arthur Pettler, Leon Davidson, Malcom Wallace, Hal Kleinschmidt, Gilbert Scott, Jimmy Baumeister, Carl Siegmund, Coach Welch.

B AND C TRACK

B TRACK: Winning two of their dual meets, the lightweight track squad uncovered several individual performers who were outstanding in their events. Five men reached the finals in the Southern California tryouts. They were: Bill Whitted, who set a new record for 1,320-yard run in the city meet, and who also qualified for the Southern California finals; John Dunwoody, winner of Minor City League broad jump at 19 feet 10 inches, Jimmy Dalton, his jumping mate in this event; Fren Anderson, in the 220-yard dash, and Bob Welch, who tied for first in pole vault. Joe Rollins was undefeated during the dual meets in the 660. Chuck McGowan won practically every race in the 120-yard low hurdles, placing fourth in the city meet. Frank Arbuthnot and Randall Spicer garnered several points in the high jump.

C TRACK: The Class C Squad also enjoyed many individual dual stars, centering around the two strongest events, the 660-yard dash and the relay team. The passers were Art Pettler, Leo Davidson, Tex Wallace, and Hal Kleinschmidt. They placed first in every dual meet, won the league finals in the fast time of 47 4/5 seconds, and qualified in the Southern California finals in a fast field of twenty-five schools. In the 660, Fred Smith also qualified for the Southern California finals, and has run in the neighborhood of 1m. 34 s. Davidson and Wallace, in the 50, and Pettler and Kleinschmidt, in the 100, made an average of 12 points per meet.

BASEBALL

As we go to press, Coach Shaffer's horsehide nine has won two out of three tilts. The team started out in a very impressive fashion at the beginning of the season, dropping the initial game with Belmont, but, after this encounter, beginning to play winning ball. Although this game was lost, chances for a tie for the championship are excellent, provided Belmont loses the one game it is doped to lose.

The game with Fremont was marked by the beautiful pitching of Captain Blankenship, and the exceptional batting of Beutler, the latter hitting a triple in the third inning with the bases full, scoring three runs. The game ended 7-4 in favor of the Colonials.

Captain Blankenship, four-year letterman, forms the nucleus of the squad, playing regularly as pitcher. To date he has pitched three games of up and up ball, using his skill and experience to advantage.

Dee Futch, although small for a first baseman, fills this position very well.

Rublee, Matsui, Petrone, and Baker, at second, short stop, catcher, and third, constitute the remainder of a well organized infield. The outfield is composed of Pettit, Miche, and Reickle, playing center field, left field, and right field, respectively.

Coach Shaffer deserves much praise for the development of such a fine team.

10TH GRADE BASEBALL

In connection with the junior divisions in athletics, tenth grade baseball fills a most important position, shaping the material of tomorrow. The squad was coached by Coach Bowen, who at the beginning of the season was confronted by an entirely inexperienced group of fellows, but who by dint of hard labor produced a serious, hard fighting team.

Eligibility is limited to those not over sixteen years of age, and not higher than the tenth grade.

In the first game of the season the team lost to the hard hitting Belmont aggregation, by virtue of rather ragged pitching.

The following game with University was won decisively by a score of 7-1, featured by the excellent pitching of Spaulding, who held the Warriors to four scattered hits.

Ordinarily the line-up is as follows: Pitcher, Spaulding or Counts; first, Enger; short, Valentine; second, Horowitz; third, Copp; left field, Rosar; center field, Stevens; right field, Hoy.

Jim Rickard, Mgr.; Roy McCastney, Ruel Harter, Frank Baldridge, Winston Byrnes, Bill Roberts.

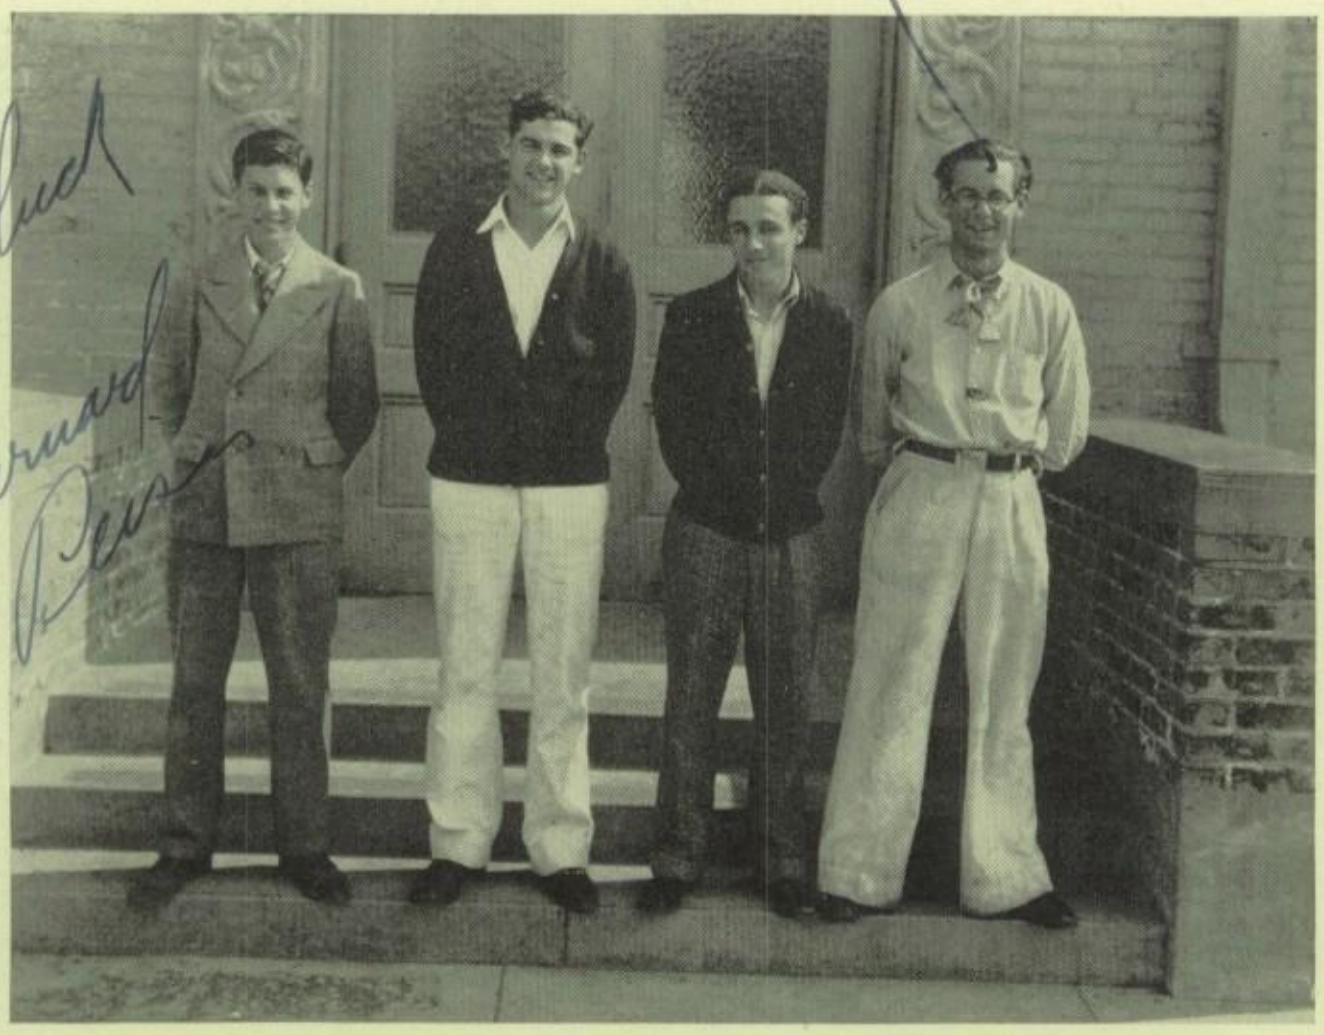
TENNIS TEAM

Although handicapped by the loss of the entire 1929 championship team, and lacking sufficient practice, the Fairfax tennis squad at the opening of the season was favored to place high among the schools of the minor league.

Due to the fact that four of the men were busy with track, the team engaged in only two practice matches, but these revealed promising material. Two members of the team were entered in both the Dudley Cup and Ojai annual tournaments.

The members of this year's team in the order of their ranking are: Roy McCartney, Reuel Harter, Winston Byrnes, Bill Roberts, Frank Baldridge, and Randall Spicer. Jim Rickard, a member of the 1929 championship squad, acted in the capacity of coach and manager. Unfortunately, Roy McCartney, Reuel Harter, Winston Byrnes, and Frank Baldridge will be lost to the team next spring through graduation.

The matches in the order in which they were scheduled were: Fairfax at Belmont, University at Fairfax, Fairfax at Fremont, Garfield at Fairfax, and Roosevelt at Fairfax.



Bert Peiser, John Latham, Jack Mass, Jerry Rollins.

MANAGERS

In connection with athletics, the position of managers is one of great importance, demanding an unusually high type of fellow, as an unlimited amount of time and responsibility is demanded in return for little or no glory. The manager is responsible for all the equipment; he also arranges the practice matches and carries out the numerable little jobs that come up. It was decided recently that the managers of the varsity squads should receive letters.

Jack Mass, manager of two championship varsity basketball teams, is an excellent example of a manager. His close association with players and his indefatigable vigilance over them in the observance of training rules made him an important cog in the mechanism of the squads.

Jerry Rollins, manager of varsity football, is also of high caliber, having served very faithfully, sharing much of Coach Welsh's responsibility.

Jim Rickard acted in the capacity of manager and coach of the tennis squad, performing both of these duties very competently.

John Latham served as varsity track manager, devoting long hours each night on the upkeep of the track and equipment.

Bert Peiser, manager of varsity baseball also worked very diligently, assisting Coach Shaffer at every opportunity.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

For the past three years the G. A. A. of Fairfax has been functioning successfully in furthering the interest of good play and sportsmanship in the girls. The girls, meeting two nights a week after school, participate in the sports of hockey, basketball, soccer, and baseball as they become seasonable.

The fall season opened with hockey as its major sport. After a successful series of interclass games, a first team from each class was chosen. From these an honorary varsity team was selected. This team represented the pick of the entire organization. An informal get-together of all the girls was held as a closing of the hockey season and as an opening of basketball.

Basketball, being the most popular game, had a very successful season. Over 150 girls turned out, all of whom participated in the games. The basketball season was concluded with the annual Mothers' and Daughters' banquet.

In this banquet Frances Woodbury acted as toastmistress, "The Good Ship Fairfax" being the theme for the evening. The decorations consisted of numerous ships to carry out the theme. Mrs. Brown gave the main speech of the evening. Songs and yells were led by the yell leader, Pattie Jo Beal. The silver loving cup (measuring cup) was awarded the freshmen for winning the song contest. There was then read the list of honor awards which were to be given out at the honor assembly.

Another feature of the fall season was a Halloween dance. This was considered a great success. Bob Millar and his orchestra entertained. Virginia Ray and Gerard Cloutman won the silver cup as first prize in the dancing contest. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were present.

November seventh, Fairfax sent to Los Angeles High School Play Day a chockey, volley ball, and a tennis team.

LETTER GIRLS

During the spring term, soccer, a comparatively new sport, was played. Although instituted only a year ago, soccer has grown in popularity and promises to become most important among the G. A. A. at Fairfax.

The G. A. A. skit, "Mr. Harem's Scarem," won first prize at the Girls' League Hi-Jinks. "Mr. Harem" was impersonated by Frances Woodbury, while Virginia Osborne as "Fatima," the favorite, sang for him. The selected group composed of Beulah Bliven, Laurine Weaver, and Dorothy Lyons, gave the "Dance of the Bath." Mr. Scarem's slaves, Naomi Hassler, Margaret Warnecke, and Virginia Reeves, gave an interpretative dance. Geraldine Diamond, Belva Donaldson, Carol Jane Thorton, Muriel Burch, Jewel Johannson, and Dorothy Jeakins were wives of Mr. Scarem.

BACK ROW: Merial Burch, Frances Woodbury, Miss Alene Rowen, Velma Rippeto, Avangeline Keenan. FIRST ROW: Elizabeth Garnett, Geraldine Diamond, Virginia Reeves, Mary Berry, Mary Brown, Beulah Bliven.

VARSITY HOCKEY

Each year the G. A. A. sponsors a Play Day here, whose purpose is the strengthening of the friendly spirit between schools. The May Day Play Day opened with a posture parade. As our guests this year we had Van Nuys, Venice, Beverly, and Fremont. Competitions were held in baseball, hockey, archery, tennis, and volley ball. After the games a program of song and dance was enjoyed. To complete the program for the day, refreshments were served in the Italian Sunken Gardens.

In baseball there is great competition between the classes. Every class is represented with a strong team.

A new organization has been formed by the letter girls. The requirements are: Good sportsmanship, the ability to play the game, and a Fairfax G. A. A. letter.

To win a Fairfax letter, 500 points must be earned. For each additional 250 points a star is awarded. This club has been organized to render service at Christmas.

The Girls' Gym has been replenished with a new cantonment of lockers and a backstop.

ONE ACT PLAYS

"The Boy Comes Home," by A. A. Milne, was the first play given in the Assembly for the fall term. It was an amusing comedy of how a war can change a meek boy into a masterful man. From the applause received, the work of the "B" Drama class, under the supervision of Miss Araxie Jamgochian, was fully appreciated.

THE PLAYERS

Jack Smith, Margaret Warrniche, Ralph Schaller, and Rena Phaire.

* * * *

Our Senior High Christmas play, "Dust of the Road," by K. S. Goodman, was given by the "B" Drama class, under the direction of Miss Araxie Jamgochian. It was a play showing the true Christmas spirit, that of giving. Though all were difficult portrayals, they were well enacted by Charles Judson, Richard Gray, Lila May Jeffries, and Donald Wilson.

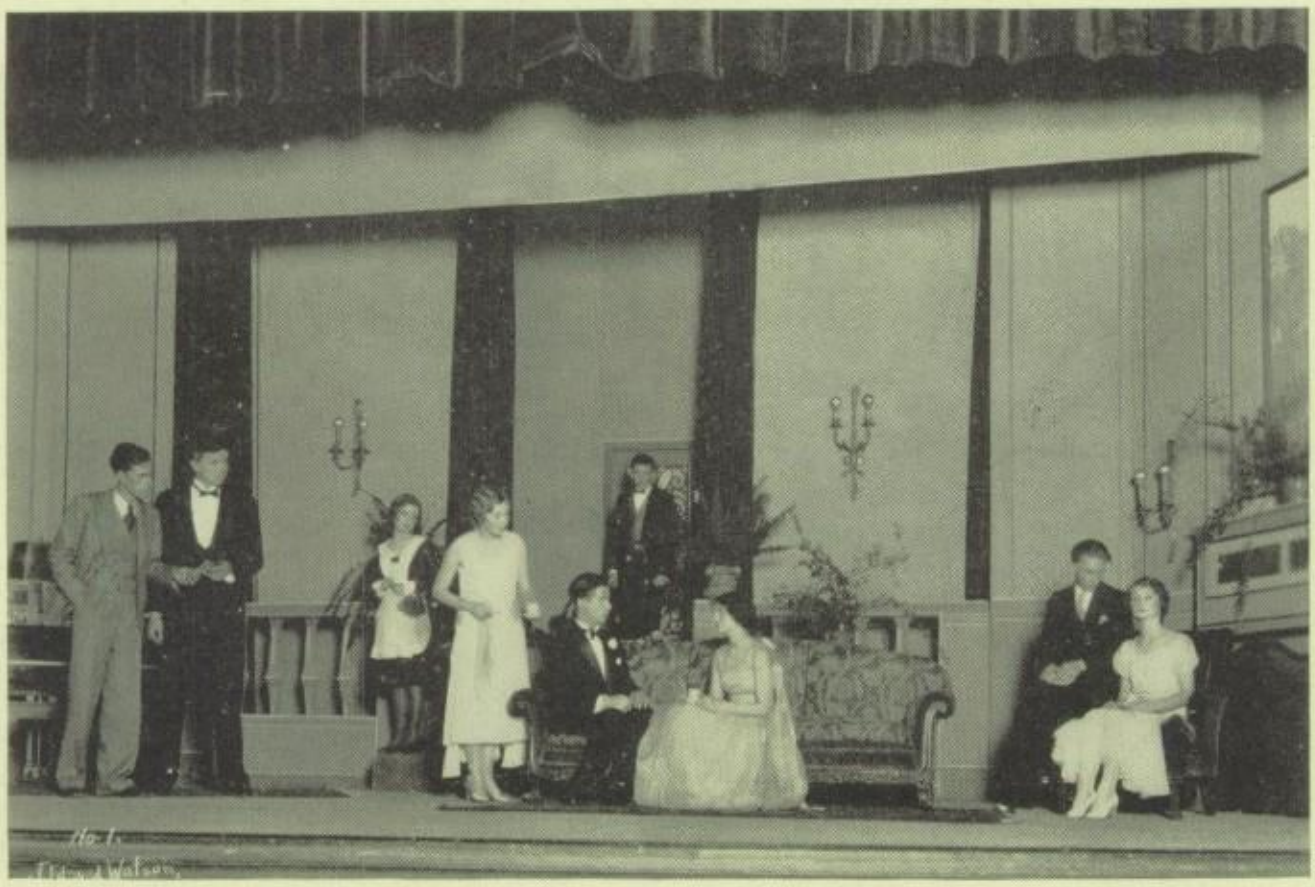
The Junior High Yule-tide play was a delightful fantasy by Margaretta Scott, entitled "The Heart of Pierrot." It told the fanciful story of a little clown who, though a failure at his "Clown School," learned to make people happy by love and thoughtfulness. The players that helped to make this play a success were: Ruth Oberg, Nestor Aber, Alberta Simpson, Allen Sowith, Norman Wood, and Joe Passin. The play was given under the direction of Joe Copp and Belva Donaldson, both of whom are in Miss Araxie Jamgochian's Class of Directing.

* * * *

A very clever imitation of a Hollywood premiere and the one-act play of newspaper life, "Copy," by Kendall Banning, formed the spring entertainment of Miss Araxie Jamgochian's B Drama Class.

The premiere was one of the best skits ever given at Fairfax, and many celebrities were represented. Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy were portrayed by our two comedians, Neil Iverson and Earnest Fountain. Dorothy Barr and Don Wilson as Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., looked more like the famous couple than they do themselves. Marion Davies, Armida, Louise Fazenda, Charlotte Greenwood alias Anne Ray, Greta Garbo, Harold Lloyd, Mildred Davis Lloyd, Joe Gaudio as the inimitable Chevalier, Fifi Dorsay, Helen Kane, and others hurried to the "mike" to repeat their lines under the direction of Nestor Aber as the announcer. One especially good characterization was Winston Byrnes as Ted Lewis. His "Is Everybody Happy" and accompanying speech was one of the best given.

The plot of "Copy" dealt with a newspaper man's courage in writing up a terrible catastrophe which he has been told caused the death of his wife and child. William Dillon portrayed the lead with poise, and others equally as good in the cast were John De Mott, Seymour Levenberg, Paul Nathan, Tucker Stainback, Durwood Mountford, and Pat Nicholson.



"CLARENCE"

Booth Tarkington's charming comedy of a returned doughboy was chosen by the W'30 class as their graduation play. The cast was composed of the talented pupils of Miss Araxie Jamgochian's Senior Dramatic class. The play was given twice to audiences who gave themselves up completely to the winning ways of "Clarence," and the humorous quarreling of Bobby and Cora.

The carefully chosen cast, in order of their appearance, was as follows:

Mrs. Martyn	La Vone Harden
Mr. Wheeler	Frank Olins
Mrs. Wheeler	Alyson Larkin
Bobby Wheeler	Emerson Hall
Violet Pinney	Naiola Lord
Clarence	Frank Lea
Della	Anafred Jordan
Dinwiddie	Jack Thompson
Hubert	Albert Meyer

ORATORY AND DEBATING

Fairfax has been forensically handicapped during the past year by the lack of a coach for debating and oratory. Mr. Goddard, head of the English department, and other teachers, as well, have given up much of their spare time to assist debaters and orators, but the absence of a forensic instructor has been keenly felt.

The subject of the interclass debates during the first semester was, "Resolved, That the Law Providing Free Textbooks in California Be Abolished." Upholding the negative, Earle Vaughn and Aaron Brodsky, A12, defeated Georgie Small and Dorothy Hull, A10, in the finals. "Resolved, That Final Examinations Should Be Abolished" was the subject for the spring term. George Bevis and Bill Thomas, A11, of the negative, were victorious over Helen Benton and Henry Silk, A10. Practice inter-school debates were held during the second semester.

Two oratorical contests were participated in by Fairfax. They were the Herald Extemporaneous and National Constitutional Oratorical. In the latter, Fairfax placed first and second in the district finals.

LIBRARY CLUB

The Library Club functions to stimulate an interest in books and to encourage the reading and discussion of late works.

The members select the books they wish to read, with the assistance of their sponsor, Miss Helen Estill, and as many as possible of these are purchased with the club dues. The members are thus enabled to read almost all of the newest and best books.

All books belonging to the club are kept in a glass case in the library, and none but Library Club members are allowed to use them.

Representatives from the club are usually sent to the meetings of the Book of the Month Club for high school pupils, at the Los Angeles Central Library, making it possible for the Fairfax Library to keep in touch with literary activities of other high school students.

AVIATION CLUB

The purpose of the Aviation Club is to promote interest in aviation among the boys of Fairfax.

Model planes were made, sponsored by Everett Hublemeyer, Jr., by the members and shown in exhibition. A plane modeled by William Newman was autographed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

The club also made frequent trips to airports, and many are planning to attend aviation schools after graduation from Fairfax.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

"To seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, to be trustworthy, hold on to health and thereby gain happiness," is the ideal to which the Campfire Girls strive.

The first activity of the fall semester was a ceremonial for the awarding of honors and ranks. A delightful week-end was spent later at the Griffith Park Camp, Chilecoth, where the members practiced flagging, sang songs, and cooked over an open fire.

At another time, the Campfire Girls went swimming at Bimini.

One of the most popular pastimes is skating, and the club had several enjoyable hikes in the Hollywood Hills and various resorts.

The meetings, which are held either at the homes of the girls or around the open fireplace in the Fairfax Sunken Garden, are spent very profitably doing their routine, stunts, and service.

The doughnut sale and the Fritizies and Fannie sale with the Mothers and Daughters tea were other features sponsored by the Girls' senior group.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club, 4th chapter of the Federation of World Friendship Clubs, is one of the active clubs at Fairfax. They carry on educational work with foreign countries under the sponsorship of Miss Charlotte Mills and Miss Elizabeth Summerhays, and world travelers or people interested in World Friendship are invited to speak before them. The Club sold World Friendship Christmas Cards last semester, and this term they collected a portfolio to send to a foreign country.

Among the speakers who visited the Cosmopolitan Club this year were: Mrs. Belle Clewe, who spoke on her trip to Japan; Chief Faigago Tufele, Samoan Chief, who told of conditions in Samoa; Miss Evaline Dowling, and Miss Ethelwyn Mills, both active in World Friendship Work.

Charles Breyfogle, a prominent member, has for the last year been Second Vice-President of the Federation of World Friendship Clubs. Approximately thirty members represented Fairfax at the Annual World Friendship banquet at the Alexandria Hotel this semester.

THE JUGENBUND

The Jugenbund was organized to further the practical and cultural uses of the German language and to foster among the students a keen interest in the language. Under the sponsorship of Miss Henrietta Way a meeting was held every two weeks. The programs of these meetings alternated, one being entirely devoted to the singing of German songs and the playing of German games; the other, to business matters.

At the program meetings such topics as German artists, scientists, musicians, legends, and picturesque scenes in Germany were brought up and discussed. In this way the members learned the characteristics of that country as well as the language, thus making the study of the language much more interesting.

According to the custom of the German Club, at the meeting held just before Christmas a party was held. The decorated Christmas tree was then presented to some hospital or charitable organization.

GIRLS' FRIENDSHIP CLUB

A friendly little club, always ready to help, this group of girls lives up to the name given to their organization. The purpose of the club is to promote friendship; the motto is "Friendship to All"; and their colors, blue and gray. The activities of the club have been varied. A halloween party was given at the home of the president, Jeanne Hoyt, at the beginning of the term. To help new students around the school, a reception committee was formed at the beginning of the spring term. A clever little skit was given for the Girls' Hi Jinks, proving to the waiting world that this club was ambitious enough to even attempt a bullfight. Dorothy Platt entertained the girls at the semi-annual party given in June, one of the big social affairs of the year. The last party given by this club was the one honoring the new girls of Fairfax. As usual, this was a success and was a fitting ending for the year.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Le Cercle Francais has tried this year to create a greater interest in French, and to promote sociability among its members. With the aid of the officers and the faculty sponsors, Miss Davis and Mrs. Henry, the French Club has been able to enjoy its regular meetings with interesting programs.

Having the hearty cooperation and interest of all of its members, Le Cercle Francais carried out a program of Christmas charity work. The organization that was directly benefited by this work was the Kings' Daughters Day Nursery.

SENATUS POPULESQUE ROMANUS

The Latin Club, which is called Senatus Populesque Romanus, or S. P. Q. R.—meaning the Senate and the Roman people—is one of the first clubs ever organized at Fairfax. The club has at all times endeavored to live up to its purpose of providing wholesome enjoyment and good times as a cultural side of the study of Latin.

During the fall semester numerous entertainments and programs were given. Much interesting benefit work was done at Hammel Street School, which was ably aided by Miss Theresa Reeve, club sponsor.

In the spring term was given the Latin Club banquet at which everything was served in Roman style, and everyone was dressed in colorful Roman garb.

SPANISH CLUB—"LOS HIDALGOS"

The Spanish Club is primarily a social organization to promote an interest in the Spanish language and to enable one to become better acquainted with the customs and traditions of Spanish-speaking countries.

After the usual business, the members participate in various programs in Spanish, which include skits or dialogues, musical numbers and games.

After having been a member of the club for a term and having participated in one or more of the programs, one is entitled to a club pin. This pin has a lion rampant as the Fairfax emblem and a crown standing for "Los Hidalgos" or "The Nobles."

The outstanding event of the fall semester was a Christmas party at the home of the sponsor, Miss Margaret Roalfe. This party was in the form of a Spanish dinner and pinata, followed by games and other entertainment. A play was given by the following members: Ruth Frankel, Ouida Hooper, Elizabeth Duvall, and Juanita Conger. There was also a song by Maria Munoz and a dance by Esperanza Mayen, Evelyn Smith, and Woolloomoolloo Cleaves. Mildred Drake gave a piano solo and Evelyn Smith sang. George Bevis gave a story of Christmas in Mexico. The group played games and sang songs.

In the spring semester the girls in the Hi-Junks represented a Mexican street scene, and the club held a beach party and wienie bake.

GIRLS' TENNIS CLUB

The Girls' Tennis Club of Fairfax has grown to a flourishing institution. This year, the girls went to play tennis at the Santa Monica Municipal tennis courts, and then had lunch nearby. The Club has held a doubles tournament.

The purpose is to interest the girls of Fairfax in tennis. Lorna Biermiester is girl's champion.

The purpose of this club is to promote knowledge of and interest in modern and ancient history, under the sponsorship of Miss Martha Schulof.

Informative reports, delightful entertainment, and refreshments have featured the monthly after-school meetings.

The club specialized in California history, which was the central theme of the illustrated oral reports. Outstanding ones were "San Francisco During the Gold Rush"; "Old Monterey," by Louise Braas; "The Bear Flag Revolt," by Robert Freese, and "California Architecture," by Robert Millar.

At the entertainments, Spanish and Mexican music and refreshments were featured.

The club visited the Huntington Library during the spring term and saw the Mission Play at San Gabriel.

FORESTRY CLUB

The Fairfax Forestry Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. W. J. Koenig, had one of its most successful years in its existence. Although membership was much lower this year than last, many important things were accomplished, chief among these being the acquisition of a new and far superior camp site. Work on this is progressing rapidly and the club looks forward to the completion of its cabin in the near future. Noticeable work was done in tree planting this year, with approximately 700 trees planted. Weekly meetings and night banquets were also regular events in the club's history.

THE FAIRFAX PRESS CLUB

Organized primarily for students of Journalism, membership in the Press Club is open to all upper grade students interested in creative working.

Meetings are held once a month after school. Captain Edward Salisbury, traveler and writer, addressed the club on "Adventures in the South Seas," and was made an honorary member.

A group of newspaper men and women have given the embryo reporters an inside glimpse of life on a city daily.

Girls of the Press Club presented an act on the Girls' High Jinks program.

HI-Y

The Hi-Y of Fairfax is a subsidiary of the Y. M. C. A., and the purpose is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

The slogan of this organization is Clean Speech, Clean Sports, Clean Scholarship, and Clean Life. The program of the spring term was especially interesting. On April third, a joint meeting with the Hollywood Hi-Y was held. A faculty breakfast was given April seventh with each member of the organization bringing a teacher with him. The speaker of the occasion was Mr. Thomas Howard, coach at U. S. C.

A banquet to honor the mothers of the group was held May twelve, with Bobbie Burns, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Egypt, as guest speaker. Mr. William Lopez of Franklin High School also gave an interesting talk on athletics. The Hi-Y group at Fairfax holds its standards high and is one of the best organizations in operation at the Colonial School.

"BUMPS OF KNOWLEDGE"

Except for a few bored yawns that the students permitted themselves, the schoolroom was quiet. A paper wad was shot and its creator quickly subdued by a frozen stare from the teacher. The silence was suddenly broken by the door creaking, and into this strained atmosphere walked Artist, black hands dangling loosely and clumsy feet slapping the wooden floor.

Accompanying this interruption of the lethargy which clouded the room was the rustle of the gaping children as they turned to watch the newcomer. After a moment's pause the teacher remarked, "Late again. Where is your excuse?" The negro produced a lavender sheet of paper, handed it to her without a word, and started to his seat. She deliberately permitted him to gain his destination and then commanded, "Come here!" The small black boy shuffled to the front of the room to be rewarded with, "Bring me the ruler!" He slowly paced the few steps to the closet and, opening the door, took out the long, well-worn piece of wood. The room now was a seething mass of whispers, unsympathetic and cruel.

The little black child looked very tired, but this apparently only goaded the teacher on to her punishment. The tone of her voice frightened him, as she said, "I have stood all I can of your tardiness. Talking doesn't seem to help. I guess your case needs something more." He closed his eyes. Her words seemed to him like tiny pieces of glittering ice strung together on a harsh thread of sound. Automatically his hands raised, palms upward, to receive the stinging blows he knew were coming. Swift and biting they came, cutting into his tender hands and making him whimper with the pain.

It was over. Again he walked to his seat, ignoring the taunts, oblivious of the feet thrust in his path. He stared out of the window, watching the flurries of snowflakes that fell upon the barren ground. His mind fled back to last summer. What fun he had had on the plantation.... Nothing to do.... No merciless white children to make his life miserable. The snow fell faster and he tried to picture his old home covered with the fluffy stuff. When he first heard that he was to move up North, gladness had filled his heart, but it had not lived up to his many dreams. Great waves of homesickness rolled over him and he felt himself about to be swallowed up in their depths.

A PERFECT DAY

If one goes out Ventura Boulevard for several miles, one comes to a forked road—a road, as I fancifully imagined, stretching on and on, like a giant dragon basking in the sun. The other road, which, in truth, is but a mere path, turns off from the main road and twines in and out a mountain side, and here and there one can see small stretches of the path winding up the mountain side, almost hidden by the heavy green foliage and the tall, dark trees. If the traveler takes this last road, and goes up the mountain, in between the trees and ferns, he meets a truly beautiful sight. There are many brooks babbling merrily on their way down the mountain side, and though one cannot see all of them, but only hear them, it makes the scene appear a bit mysterious, adding zest to any outing made by a pleasure seeker. Some one finds a fall, small, but truly terrific in force, and it comes so unexpectedly that he is astounded. It rushes its myriad of tiny torrents over the rocks, and the water sparkles like pure crystal. The water catches the sunlight, making a veritable prism out of it—displaying equisite, misty rainbows. Bordering and overhanging the stream are deliciously cool and inviting green ferns, dripping diamonds where the water has touched their tips. The beauty of this fall and brook creates an impression upon one's mind, never to be forgotten. One can easily imagine tiny, elfinlike fairies dancing in and among the ferns and alighting on the flowers with their tiny feet. The air is heavily perfumed with the scent of flowers and the blossoms of beautiful wild flowers—things one can smell but not touch—they seem far too precious to be molested by human hands. Then, one unexpectedly comes to a spring, almost hidden by long, tender shoots of grass and moss gleaming strangely like emeralds. The spring water is delicious, and one could stay there almost all day, as I did. I watered and fed my horse, as I was all alone, and threw myself down on the soft moss and was soon asleep. Despite the oncoming winter, the air was warm and fragrant as it gently caressed my body, lying so inert and motionless upon the moss.

If one really wants to go to a place, beautiful and unspoiled by the touch of man's hand; if a nature lover wants to find a true treasure; then this is the place to go. To me it is indeed the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, waiting for a new seeker of treasure—perhaps you.

ILLUSION

Moon—
Glimmering, silver moon,
Hung in the velvet night;
Stars—
Glittering, golden stars,
Bathed in a luminous light
Of wavering, shimmering mist
(Glow of the pale moon-beams)
That, lighting the heaven's depths,
Illumines a world of dreams.

Dreams—
Land of a myriad stars,
Lit by the soft moon glow,
Veiled with an opaline light;
Illusory?—Real, I know.

BERKELEY ADEHER.

THE TIP-OFF

It was after midnight and an icy drizzle was falling outside when Kid Edwards stepped into the greasy warmth of Malone's Chili House. As he stood there, with the water dripping from his thin coat, his bloodshot, worried eyes surveyed the little restaurant and came to rest on Malone, seated behind the counter.

"Feelin' O. K.?" greeted the Kid.

"Yeah, I'm O. K.," said Malone, leaning forward, and, as Edwards moved closer, "but you look all done in." He looked closely at the Kid. "Come in for a drink, did you?" His tone changed. "Well, you ain't goin' to get it. Not here, you ain't."

Edwards lit a cigarette and began to smoke.

"With a bum heart like yours," went on Malone, "you oughta cut out the fast livin'."

"Lay off," grumbled the Kid. He was getting pretty sick of Malone's preaching. This fatherly interest bunk had gone far enough. Opposed to everything he did, was Malone—even the earnings from the stick-up racket.

Malone shrugged his shoulders.

"Did you know that the Dicks were wise to the killing Rogan made last week?" he said suddenly.

Edwards spun around, the cigarette dropping from his mouth.

"What made you say that?" he gasped, face twitching.

"Easy, now, easy," cautioned Malone. "I thought you put 'em wise. Well, Rogan knows you tipped 'em, too, and you're slated for the 'spot' tonight."

"My God!" groaned the Kid. "Is that on the level?"

"Straight," said Malone. "Two of Rogan's boys are in here now. Rogan planted 'em here to watch you. Can't you get a hold on yourself?"

Edwards' hand shook as he fumbled for another cigarette.

"I've gotta hit the road." His voice was steadier now.

"Sure you have," conceded Malone.

"And I've gotta have your car—just to get to Mike's. I'll leave it there. What do yuh say?" he pleaded.

"Nix," Malone shook his head. "But if you'll wait—"

"No! Now, do yuh hear me? I've gotta, see?" Edwards was pounding the counter. Suddenly he straightened up. With a quick glance to where Rogan's boys were watching him from a rear table, he turned on Malone.

"I won't need your help," he said, and in another moment had bolted out the door.

"Hold on, Kid!" shouted Malone, running to the door. "Don't be a fool!"

He stopped and peered after a figure striding into the storm.

When out of sight of the Chili House, Edwards began to walk faster, glancing suspiciously behind every corner. He couldn't rid himself of the feeling that someone lurked behind in the darkness. The rain coursed unheeded down his face. With no thought as to the direction he was going, his one idea being to put distance between himself and Rogan's gunmen, he found himself opposite the opening of an alley.

He paused, expecting to hear stealthy footsteps behind. No such sound came, only the steady patter of the rain, and, in the distance, the dull rumble of an elevated train. And then, his ears thus tuned to every sound, caught the chugging of a car's exhaust.

Terror gripped him as he leaped into the gloom of the alley and began to run. Guided only by the dim light which filtered down from the sky, he reached the next street. It was deserted, and, peering cautiously up and down, he stepped out, listening for the car. It had passed on, he reasoned, but his heart was pounding so from his exertion that he wasn't sure.

From where he stood, the outlook was dismal and foreboding. An arc light at the corner cast a flickering, sickly glare and only accentuated the shadows of old buildings which loomed up on either side.

He began to run again, keeping well in the shadows. When almost to the corner, he was brought to a halt by a sudden sinking sensation. Pains were shooting over his whole body from the region of his heart. He leaned against a tree, growing weaker and weaker. A sign post caught his eye. He was on Roydon Way. What did it matter? And then he remembered. It was on Roydon Way that Rogan had bumped Lorry off. A feeling of nausea swept over him as he recalled that night two years ago.

A sudden desire to live brought new strength to his body. He stumbled into the street. A car was approaching near by. Half running and half crawling, he managed to reach the opposite curbing. The roar of the car was close at hand. In another minute it would be around the corner. He could almost feel the bullets ripping into his back. If he could only reach those shadows. . . .

"Gotta make it!" he whispered, and staggered behind an exterior staircase as the car swung around the corner, its headlights dancing crazily.

The white beam of a spotlight swept up and down and then came to rest on Edwards' crouching form.

"Get outa there, Edwards," said a voice.

Facing the blinding glare of the light, Edwards could make out the figure of a man rushing toward him.

"It's me, Kid; it's me!" shouted the man. But Edwards didn't hear him now. His limp body slumped down on the wet sidewalk at Malone's feet. The Chili House proprietor stopped beside the huddled figure.

"You were right, Kid. You won't need my help now," he said gently.

TO THE HOLLYWOOD HILLS

A group of giants etched against the sky,
Their shaggy heads red-gold against the blue,
Their faces changing mood with every hue
Cast by the sun as hours of light go by.
Then when the reign of night is drawing nigh
And myriad stars come slowly into view,
The giants' many eyes, some old, some new,
Their brightness bravely match with stars on high.
Oh, hills, we love your grandeur and your might,
We love your changing color, mood, and face,
Your winding roads which beckon us to come
And dwell upon your Heaven-nearing heights,
Your arms which cradle in their kind embrace
The smiling valley which we call our home.

MARIAN PEARSON.

FOG

When the fog rolls up at night,
  Shy, like a maiden kiss'd,
And the nodding flowers are put to bed
  Under a blanket of mist,
I like to fancy it all as just
  Great clouds of whitest smoke,
Blown in by Neptune to frighten us,
  As he chuckles, no doubt, at his joke.

Yet I've heard tell 'twas a great gray cat
  That seeks to stalk its prey,
And just as the world is under its spell,
  Lo! It is saved with the day!

Tho' the sailors may curse, as upon the deep
  This mist makes the high moon dim,
I think it is grand (while safe on land)
  To watch the fog drift in.

THE LIGHT OF KNOWLEDGE

Freshmen come to Fairfax to gain the light of knowledge. They're scared to death of Mr. Van Cleve and adore homework. Lloyd's is a den of vice and iniquity where only toughs and Senior B's go. They begin a foreign language and say "Good morning" in a queer accent to all their friends, and what is most juvenile of all, they try to grab a front seat in every class. They come every day on time with their lessons, and, as some teachers regularly remark, are much more quiet than Senior A's.

By the tenth grade they can ask "How are you?" in the language their doting parents have chosen for them and are progressing rapidly. They are beginning not to take the frightening heads of departments seriously. They still long, however, to bring their mothers to school and are beginning to idolize the Senior A's. Coach Call and Mrs. Fricke are terrifying, but they're getting used to them. But they're still trying to gain the light of knowledge, and they still do their homework, and they still run up and down the halls and push each other around.

When they're Juniors, they begin to be impressed with their own importance. Aren't they taking Chemistry? The Seniors don't look so hot now, and they've decided how they'll act when they attain that lofty height. They're afraid some one will see them when they're not dressed up, and they go around looking as bored as possible. They're not so eager for the front seat now, and they go to Lloyd's about once a week. The girls all belong to the G. A. A., and most of them are crazy about baseball and wish they could have a track team.

And then, after they've had a spasm and almost flunked Chemistry, they're Senior B's and look foolish in hats that don't fit them, and give a movie that's usually rotten. They no longer sit in the front seats, and the only blessing that goes witht Civics is Mr. Gilmore. The rest of the subject is terrible. They're having program trouble and wonder if they're going to graduate with their class, and then—finally the day of days has come—they're Senior A's. But the worst blow of all—it doesn't feel any different. And A12 English is foul! There's one consolation, though—Social Problems isn't as bad as Civics. Mrs. Fricke's a peach, but no one's afraid of her any more, and just try and keep them away from Lloyd's. They even eat breakfast there. They act disgustingly silly and don't care who sees them. They have Tacky Day and disgrace themselves and Fairfax. The only time they study is when they're writing themes, but they're always busy. They know more about everything than all the teachers—just ask them, and the light of knowledge is something gained.

Finally they graduate and wonder how Fairfax can get along without them, and then they come back and the real light dawns. They were just another class.

I know all this—I've been to Fairfax.

RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS

The R. O. T. C. Unit has now concluded its sixth year at Fairfax, and during the last year, as before, it has made remarkable advancement in both regular and outside activities.

An important change in the organization of the Battalion was made when Replacement Company was established as the training group and the Drum and Bugle Corps was organized as a separate company. Headquarters Company has been formed into two groups, consisting of the Staff Section to do the clerical work in the office, and a Service Section to issue and care for all the Battalion property. Both A and B Companies have served as regular line units, and it is in these two units that the men are given practical opportunities to learn their courses in various military subjects. To assist in the operation of the unit a very efficient staff of Cadet Officers has been built up consisting of an Operations Officer, an Intelligence Officer, a Personnel Officer, a Supply Officer, and a Health and Morale Officer. Each of these officers has special duties, and in order to give as many of the cadets as possible practical training in these positions, there were a number of personnel shifts made among the staff during the year.

This year the quota for the Fairfax Battalion was 140 men, and, through the plan of only allowing recruits to enter the unit when they were sponsored by one of the men already in, a very efficient personnel has been obtained. Each recruit, as he came in this last semester, did so with the express purpose of working to obtain a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps of the United States Army. This plan was adopted because of its success at West Point, and it has built up in the Battalion a group of men that will eventually take over the responsibility of being a Cadet Officer at school, and later on, in college, a Reserve Officer.

One of the chief reasons for the high degree of efficiency on the drill fields is the fact that it is necessary for all the commissioned and non-commissioned to be enrolled in a Military Science or Administration Period. The Administration Period has been restricted to the Battalion Commander and the five Company Commanders. It has served a two-fold purpose in that it works as an Officers' Conference and also allows the unit commanders to plan their schedules for the following days. It is in this class that the Officers are also given instruction in the administration of a battalion and its subordinate units.

The Military Science classes have been divided into blocks with the highest men in the highest blocks. These classes are held for the purpose of giving the men instruction so they may pass their Certificates for a Commission. Under the "Block System" the men set their own speed of study, according to their ability to master a certain subject. This system is quite progressive, because it enables the faster men to go on to a new subject without being retarded by men who are slower than they are. Personal instruction is at all times available by the instructor. It is in these classes that such subjects as Map Reading, First Aid, Military Courtesy, Command and Leadership, Patrolling, etc., are studied.

Every Monday, which is Civilian Clothes Day, some special event is planned. This last semester the Battalion had the privilege of having two interesting talks by one of the former members of the unit. The first talk was on the Stokes Trench Mortar, and the second was on the Browning Machine Gun. Among the other events held on Mondays were a spectacular Chemistry demonstration by Mr. Moses, talks by Cadet Officers, and Kangaroo Courts.

The Kangaroo Court is among one of the many interesting activities of the unit, and it affords an excellent opportunity to mete out justice to those members of the unit who deserve it.

To uphold the reputation and traditions of the Battalion, an Honor Committee, composed of a member from each company, was elected.

This committee corrects and helps the men when it is deemed necessary, and, although it was only organized this last semester, it is proving to be one of the important parts of the unit.

One of the events during the year which deserves special notice was the promotion of the Battalion's instructor, Captain D. C. Knape, to the rank of Major. It has been principally through his efforts that the unit has reached its present position, and all the men feel priviledged in having such an instructor.

This year the Annual Inspection was held on the South Parade Ground and the results were quite gratifying. Captain Merridith of the Ninth Corps Area was the Inspecting Officer, and he was accompanied by Colonel Clark, Major Knape, Mr. Van Cleve, Mr. Swan, and the Military Board composed of Captain H. Gilmore, Mr. H. Goddard, and Mr. Backer.

The Battalion was presented with two beautiful colors by the school during the last semester. The presentation of the colors took place in the form of a review before the entire student body, and the colors were presented to the Battalion by Lord High Commissioner and other student body leaders.

Besides the many school activities of the unit, there have been a number of outside events. Two very interesting trips were made to Fort MacArthur, where instructive tours were made. The whole unit presented a drill at the opening of one of the neighborhood theatres, and the Drum and Bugle Corps played at a number of outside places. Each Friday a group of the men are taken to the Hollywood "Y," where they enjoy an hour of swimming. The Cadet Officers saw the transmission of telephotos through the courtesy of the Southern California Telephone Company. Among the most interesting outside trips was the outing taken by one of the companies to Griffith Park. The men went up with regular equipment and did Extended Order Drill and simulated real battle problems.

The Battalion has enjoyed one of the most efficient and interesting programs of its history, and plans for next year indicate steady advancement along this line.

SEPTEMBER

DEAR DIARY:

I am SIMply PETrified at this point, my DEAR, you've NO idea! Pranced gleefully to SCHOOL this morning for the first time after two months of heavy huddlin' during a season of "Unusual weather." Met an absurdly diVINE "movie" director while working as an extra for the "Forward Pass." It is POSitively reMARKable what a little flirting will do. The director took ONE look at me and decided to GIVE the school a MASSive mass of bleachers. They form a LUScious background for the new YELL leaders, my DEAR!

In order to KEEP order, we now have a GRAND organization known as knights, WHY I CAN'T imagine!

Spent the most reMARKable hour gazing at the girls being inSTALLated in the Girls' LEAGue.

P. S.—Met a PERfect male—answers to the call of "BOBby"—the ONE of 2,310 STUDents now inmates of this brain factory. Made our PROgrams iDENtical!

OCTOBER

DEAR DIARY:

I'm ALL of a twitter at this point. NO less, my DEar. I'm all enMESHed with this Senior B, this BOBby.

There's an ODD organization it seems called G. A. A., standing for GIGgling Amateur Automatons!!! I MUST annEX myself to it.

P. S.—Failure! It was an athELetic association.

Went to that HECtic brawl, the G. A. A. dance, WITH the affinity—ACTually. It was a SPORTS dance, so I came in a GYM suit. was I a smash HIT? My dear, NO less!

P. S.—Went to the ARTists' program with the pipsqueak; also there WAS music, so I HEAR. Can you FEATURE it?

First LEAGUE game with Belmont. Their colors are SO cute! And MOST becoming.

My matERnal guidance is becoming STRONGer, my DEAR! The MATer has an idEA that this eternal ROUND OF gaiety is interFERing with my HOMEwork and is inTENT on my making a DILigent effort toward the purSUIT of KNOWledge—which is pracTICably beYOND me, without a DOUBT, my DEAR!

NOVEMBER

DIARY DARLING:

Went to the G. A. A. Play Day AT L. A. and was going GREAT till I found that the BOYS were conSPICuous by their ABSENCE—FEROCIOUS dis-appointment, DON'T you know?

To arm; To ARMS! Armistice day was celeBRATED, and beFORE and AFter the peace advocating PROgram we had a MERry little WAR getting IN and OUT of the PEACEful hall! Good time had by ALL, my DEAR!

MANny attempts are being MADE to COERCE us to exCEED our QUOTA for the ComMUNity Chest. It's SIMPLY BREAKING ME, my DEAR.

Girls' League THANKSgiving stuff going over BIG—League ALSO gave a ladies' TEA FOLlowing the system of CABarets. THIS type of "cab" is NEW to ME, actually, my DEAR.

The FASHion show was TOO good—if I HAD to wear clothes like THAT, I'd GIVE myself up!

Big COlor day blow-out—OODLes of fun, my DEAR—what HO! I could FALL for a sweater like THAT.

BOBby, as a COLONial Knight got a PRE-Cious pin—NOW it's MINE.

Finis—Only EIGHT more months to GO! HI-Ho! I'm pracTICably pooped out alREADY!

DECEMBER

DEAR DIARY:

CAPS to the RIGHT of me, caps to the LEFT of me, caps ALL aROUND ME. And you should SEE BOBby! He's a BIG Senior B, YOU know.

Football ENDS and BASKetball begins. REEally—I didn't KNOW I was so athLETIc-ally incLINED.

Christmas DOLL show—I THINK I'll ENter.

The DOLLS went to HAMmel street, BUT I DIDn't. BOBby would be SIMPly livid with-OUT me, absoLUTELY, and THEN there's a perfectly obNOXious BLONDE hanging AROUND his neck. I'll have to WATCH my STEP—AND his!

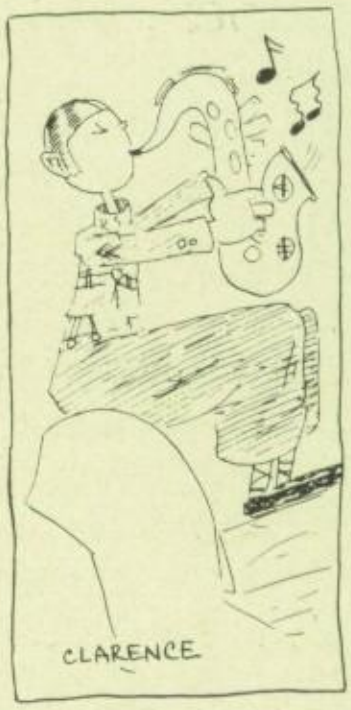
PILES of parties given, with I RUSHing HITHER and THITHer.

LAST day of School!!! Two WEEKS of inNOCuous and RAPid vacation. REEally! Had a Xmas PROgram including a play. I enJOYed the BACK of the girl's HEAD who sat in FRONT of me.

JANUARY

DEAR DIARY:

I'm in a PERfectly aTROcious mess at this point, my LAMB, No less! BOBby and I had a TISH-TISH. Didn't you KNOW we WOULD, my DEAR?



And now an ABsolutely POISONOUS pip-squeak is on my trail—other nincompoops call him Jimmy: blond hair and BLUE eyes—WHAT a COMbination!

Johnny Bean, one of the BOSton Beans, you know, is PONDering the point of GIVing me an INvite to the Senior PLAY, "Clarence," can you COPE with it?

Had a QUAINT time at the affair, my DEAR. It was SIMPly swiss, I mean it ACTUally was!

The most inTRIGuing eLECtion was held and I'm SIMply all aGOG over it. Dick Swift and MilTON Whitaker, two ODD souls, walked off with Lord High AND Assistant Lord High, respectABLY.

I'm SIMply MAD to spill the news, MY dear. That oBNOXious person BOBby has come THROUGH with the INvite for the LET-Termen's dance, and I'm posiTIVELY inTRIGUED at this point! The dance was JUST the duck's QUACK, no LESS!

Graduation come and gone and BOBby is slightly MANIACAL at this point over being a SENior A! I'm abs-lutely DYing from the after effects of exCITEment, I mean I ACTually AM!

FEBRUARY

DEAR DIARY:

ALL exCITEment over AND we're all just eXUDing gossip in lieu of nothing MORE inTRIGuing!

New term progressing with AsSIZE courts discomBOBulated and Girls' LEAGue in-STALLED (learned HOW to SPELL it this year). BOBby's class elected OFFicers, and it SIMPLY VANquishes me that BOBby wasn't elected to SOMEthing. ComPLETEly baffled and nonPLUSSed at this point, my DEAR, because I ASK you, WHY should FEBruary be such an apPALLingly DULL month?

P. S.—VALentine's day was NOT celebrated throughOUT the school, but OH, My! Got a LOVely valentine from (Guess WHO!). FURthermore, I was proPELLED across the street to LLOYD'S and fed an S'30 SPECial or something! I've KIND of forGOTten what it WAS, as all I can reMEMber is some apPALLing dumb piece called "DRINK to ME ONLY with Thine EYES"—Or IS that the name?

Rod Wilson

MARCH

DEAR DIARY:

I'm SUDdenly enGULFED in the SOCial RACKet again, my LAMB. A PERfectly FU-Tile life is this inANE stepping, but TERribly exciting!

I am POSitively BAFfled at THIS point about the FARE FAC motto CONtest. It SEEMS that some ODD souls THOUGHT that there should be a NEW MEANing attached to the stale one of SAY—DO! Quaint, YOU know!

I saw the MOST enTRANCing skit for the FURtherment of the ANNual drive or SOMETHING, can you BEAR IT? A VERY AMAZing SPECtacle!

The TRACK season is becoming TERribly exCITing, you've NO idea! I am CONStantly YOWLing and SHRIEKING at ye olde MEETS! I saw a FRIGHTfully sweet picture presented with the COMpliments (for FIFteen cents) by the comMERcial department. I SIMply adORE this school. REALLY, MY DEAR.

APRIL

DEAR DIARY:

RIP 'em up! If the SENior B's didn't have a QUAINT color day—and wearing beRETS and DERBies! They simply SLAY me, NO less! The PICture they presented was "DRAG" and was FRIGHTfully good, but the "SOUND" was abs'LUTEly foul. JUST a sec WHILE I think. I MUST collect my MEMory.

AH—the Girls' Hi JINKS was OODLES of fun; do you KNOW what I MEAN? I dressed in an OLD fashioned NIGHT SHIRT and night cap and carried a CANDLE—I looked SIMply VILE! I'm MAD about these "HEN" parties, one can be SO much more NATural, don't you KNOW? Listened, I MUST confess VAGUEly, to an oraTORical contest, but a CUTE little CURly haired BOY in the treMENDous discussion soon made ME take NOtice! Frances Brady won vicTORiously!

BOBby attended the ROman BANquet as a GLADiator, sort of, and he SIMply SLAYED me in the roMANtic costume, REally!

LOADS of gossip is REELing around about SENior A COLOR day—it SOUNDS positively aMAZING. Boys' week simply SLAYS me, with all the YOUTHS in this day NURSery taking positively tremendous jobs in the WORLD, and wandering vaguely around, pondering on some great SUBject.

TERribly glad now that it's ALL Over. I'M SIMply livid at THIS point, listening to GOSsip and BUGgying around with BOBby, you KNOW what I MEAN!

MAY

I'm on the VERGE of hySTERics at this POINT, for I just WITnessed a SIMPLY THRILLing and exCRUCiating revue. RIP 'em up! If it WASn't the BEST thing I ever OGGLED at, my PRECious! One scene was abs'LUTEly the SWAN'S QUACK, no less! BOBby was one of the ODD youths in this SPECTACLE, and I was SUDdenly enGULFED with him; I mean I ACTually was!

This event caused a treMENdous disCUSSion for the Senior A's PROMPtly blossomed out in their BLUE and WHITE SWEATers. I'M simply MAD about BOBby in that article of clothing; can you BEAR it? Senior A's VERsus Senior B's (the MALES of both species) competed in a tug-of-WAR and had a PERfectly BEAUTiful time DIGGING themselves from the MUDdy water. The little GAUDio boy fell in the MUD and THOroughly SATurated himself! A PERfectly FUTile attempt to nab the VICtory was made by the SENior B's, BUT, of COURSE, the Senior A's WON. DIDn't you guess they WOULD? That aMAZing Girls' League is inAUGurating a TEA DANCE for male and female pipsqueaks in the GYM—Robert ALLOYcious MillAR and his music were SIMPLY inTRIGuing, no less!

Those MARVELously bright ANGels, the ProMETHEAns, enjoyed a HALF Holiday, when they could PRANCE GAYly out the FRONT door after FOURTH period and play around at having a SIMPLY NIFTY time, and not even THINK of what Papa GOODnough would SAY! Being DITCH day for the CLEver, BOBby and I played a FRIGHTfully witty trick in the SCHOOL and stayed OUT ALL day—and WHAT a day: MORNing, TENnis; afterNOON, the BEACH; EVENing, a SHOW; night, a PARTY; early next morning, SLEEP!

I'm all aGOG to know WHAT the forthcoming MONTH will BRING. Can you COPE with it?

JUNE

Dear Diary:

LOADS of inTRIGuing enterTAINment in progress this MONTH. These POISonous final TESTS are the ONly black spots in my FUTure, at the MOMent!

Warm WEATHer agAIN. Beach, BEACH, and MORE beach!

I'm all aGOG at this POINT over the SENior A PLAY. It was posiTIVEly, GORGeously, treMENDously, excrucIATingly—OH, well! It was TERRibly SWELL.

This SOCial racket is posiTIVELy THRILLING, and commencement (is THAT what one calls it?) is in the OFFing—or SOMEwhere!

All's WELL that ENDS well; but I WONDer when I LOOK at BOBBYs GRADES!
